THE PRE-ROLL THAT COMES IN GLASS

A hand-blown Jerome Baker tube for the Puff one-gram – the same format, the same wordmark up the side – one holiday drop, in a vessel that outlives the joint.

THE PREMISE

TWENTY MILLION SOLD. NOTHING TO KEEP.

Twenty million pre-rolls says the audience is there and that it comes back. What it has never once been handed is a reason to keep the tube - every one of them went out in printed plastic and every one of them went in the bin.

This is not a proposal to change what twenty million pre-rolls ship in. It is one drop, once, at the end of the year: the same tube in hand-blown glass, paired with a strain worth the occasion, in a box worth opening.

A pre-roll people queue for, and a piece they still have next Christmas.

THE PIECE · JBD-JT-124

THE JOINT TUBE

A straight, flat-bottomed tube in boro 3.3, blown to take a one-gram king-size cone with room to shake it back out. It stands on a counter, it stops on a table, and it is finished the way a piece of glass is finished rather than the way a component is.

Overall height	124 mm
Body	24 mm OD, 4.5 mm wall
Bore	15 mm – takes a 1 g cone
Base	7 mm, flat and closed
Glass	approx. 79 g, boro 3.3
Colourway	Puff Blue, silver fumed
Closure	tapered natural cork, 24 mm
Print	50 mm label band, up the axis

PUFF BLUE

Your blue in the body, silver fumed so it flashes as the piece turns rather than sitting flat on it.

GOLD DRIPS

A band of gold laid on at the rim and let go. It runs, thins, and beads where it stopped. No two are the same.

PINK AND GOLD WIG WAG

Stringers walked round the base while they are run up and down, stacked into chevrons. Pulled by hand.

WHY THIS GLASS

NOT A GLASS TUBE. A JEROME BAKER.

Jerome Baker Designs has been blowing glass since the nineties. The name is the point: it is the reason a customer keeps the tube on a shelf instead of in a drawer, and the reason the second one is bought without a joint in it.

The drips run where they run. Two tubes off the same bench are the same object and not the same piece - and at twenty thousand units that is not a limitation, it is the only thing plastic cannot copy.

NO TOOLING TO AMORTISE

Injection moulding wants fifty thousand units before the tool pays for itself. Glass has no tool - a ten thousand unit run is a normal run, and the second colourway costs nothing to add.

WORKED, NOT MOULDED

Boro 3.3. The body is formed to spec; the wig wag, the drips, the marbles and the mark are laid on by hand, which is what a mould cannot do at any volume.

NON PLANT-TOUCHING

The glass ships from the non-cannabis entity, so nothing about the collab touches either licence.

THE BOX

RIGID BOARD, HINGED LID, MAGNETIC CLASP.

A keepsake handed over in a paper bag is a keepsake nobody photographs. The lid is hinged full height and closes onto two disc magnets in the front lip. It opens with a click and closes the same way.

Outside	53 x 48 x 169 mm
Board	3.5 mm rigid, wrapped
Clasp	2 x 9 mm disc magnets
Insert	die-cut foam, one well
Relief	front-cut - lifts straight out

The lining carries the colour. Glass is transmissive, so behind a black insert the piece reads black – the insert is what it is seen against, and it is the one part of the box that is not black.

THE DROP

A HOLIDAY DROP, NOT A PACKAGING CHANGE.

When	holiday - on shelf for the gifting weeks
Markets	California and New York
Volume	10,000 units per state - 20,000 in total
The piece	one finish - Puff Blue, silver fumed
Paired with	a strain chosen for the drop, named on the box
Allocation	by door count, into doors that already carry Puff
After it	the same piece, a new strain - a drop a quarter if the first one lands

A limited piece with a strain on it is a reason to come in during gifting week.

CAPACITY

CAPACITY IS NOT THE QUESTION

The body and the decoration are two different jobs, and both are already running. Twenty thousand pieces for a holiday window is a normal run – the line is in place, the hand-off pack is drawn, and the date is the only thing left to agree.

THE BODY

Drawn boro tubing, cut to 124, base closed flat at 7 and the rim rolled. Standard tube-shop work – runs in the tens of thousands are routine, and the hand-off pack is already drawn for a factory, in English and in Chinese.

THE DECORATION

Wig wag, drips, two marbles and the pressed mark: four passes by hand on a finished body. A staffed decorating cell does this work already – it is the part nobody can copy, and it is not the part that limits the run.

the same piece, a new strain each time

One piece and one finish keeps it simple all the way down: one spec on the bench, one label, one SKU on the shelf in both states – and the strain is the only thing that changes next time.
